

McLARENS INTRODUCES CRISIS MANAGEMENT DIVISION

Atlanta, GA: Global loss adjuster, McLarens, is pleased to introduce their new Crisis Management division. Led by John Turner out of Boston, Massachusetts, the team will focus on developing strategic growth and support to the product recall, war, political violence and terrorism speciality markets. John brings nearly 30 years' experience to McLarens both in claims adjusting and underwriting, having most recently been Head of Product Recall for XL Catlin's North American Crisis Management operation. McLarens' Crisis Management group offers a diversified core of expertise, trusted to handle multi-million dollar risks across the globe.

Gary Brown, Chief Executive Officer, commented: "As the market shifts toward this growing sector, we strive to further support our customers' need for expertise in these niche fields. John and his team are uniquely qualified to deliver innovative solutions in our digital age."

John Turner, Crisis Management Director, added: "I'm pleased to lead our newly formed group of talented adjusters who are dedicated to providing a high quality and bespoke approach to reputational risk issues for our clients. We look forward to establishing our position as market leader in Crisis Management."

Joining John on the Crisis Management team include several powerhouse leaders across the globe. Managers overseeing regional teams include Tim Hollinrake and Tony Chapman in Asia Pacific, Esteban Fernandez and Juan Carlos Lancheros Rueda in Latin America, George Wasielke in North America, David Watts and David Fillingham in Europe, and Malcolm Addy in the Middle East.
