

McLarens expands All-Ireland Casualty team with Dublin hires

In line with the continued growth of its All-Ireland Casualty team, McLarens, the global loss adjusting firm specialising in complex, commercial and niche markets, has recruited two liability adjusters in Dublin. Ruairi McMullin and Eoin Hanratty join the team as Executive Adjuster and Adjuster respectively and will report into David O'Neill, who heads up the Ireland Casualty team. The move will strengthen the firm's position in Dublin and further extend McLarens' All-Ireland offering, which also includes offices in Belfast, Cork and Derry.

Ruairi, a qualified solicitor, has 12 years experience in liability claims, with a focus on personal injury. He joins from Davies Group where he managed a diverse portfolio of claims including professional indemnity, employers' liability, public liability, property, product liability and contractors' claims.

Eoin joins from Arnold & Green Liability Adjusters and has five years experience working in liability claims. Eoin began his insurance career in Aviva's claims department, having previously graduated with a BEng (Hons) in Civil Engineering and worked in the construction and engineering industry. Eoin will work across the full range of liability claims with a focus on personal injury and third party property claims.

Both adjusters have significant experience in dealing with both London market and local clients.

David O'Neill, Head of Casualty, Ireland, commented:

"These hires are further evidence of our commitment to the Dublin market. Dublin has proven to be an important hub for the growth of our liability service offering across the Republic of Ireland and Northern Ireland, for both local and London market clients, and we continue to see increasing demand for our traditional approach to liability claim investigations and handling, which necessitates talented local adjusters with the relevant technical expertise and experience. With that in mind, I'm delighted to welcome Ruairi and Eoin to the team."
