BIOGRAPHY

Ryan came to McLarens bringing with him extensive knowledge in the steel structure fabrication, construction, and erection disciplines developed during prior employment with one of the largest steel fabrication companies in the United States, with projects consisting of various arenas, stadiums, casinos, skyscrapers and large commercial properties situated throughout the contiguous United States and Canada. Prior to his involvement in the steel fabrication industry, Ryan was employed by an independent foreign car manufacturer repair facility, where he gained an understanding of vehicle and equipment mechanical and electrical processes.

Ryan joined McLarens in January 2008 and has continued to expand his knowledge of construction disciplines through handling of numerous commercial and residential property losses, while applying his knowledge of the fabrication industry as a background for damage evaluations and assessments. Ryan continues to also apply his understanding of equipment mechanical and electrical processes during handling of various contractor's and heavy equipment losses and failures including fires, break-downs, and crane collapses.

While being employed with McLarens, Ryan has further enhanced his skills by handling medium to large loss claims resulting from various hurricanes, tornadoes, floods, hailstorms, fires, and freezes throughout the region. With these claims, Ryan has performed damage assessments, prepared scope and cost evaluations, developed property valuations, included coverage application, negotiated settlements, analyzed business interruption effects, and utilized various claims resolution practices during his adjustment processes.
