

McLarens Conservation

Born from experience gained in the McLarens Private Clients & Estates team, and drawing on the skills of qualified conservators, the McLarens Conservation team offers an entirely unique and innovative approach to navigating property losses.

At a time where resilience and sustainability are not negotiable, our team of qualified Conservators has successfully pioneered the application of traditional and cutting-edge skills to the restoration of buildings, objects and the often-overlooked logistical processes associated with complex losses.

Using a network of experienced specialists across a constantly expanding range of skills, conservation has been crucial in reducing the impact of incidents on private individuals and commercial entities across the globe.

From undertaking assessments on damaged artwork to applying custom restoration to historic buildings, our team calls upon their own experience and identifies a route to achieving a successful, cost-effective and less invasive claim resolution.

Sometimes, the simplest method can avoid unnecessary expenditure, disruption and complication for all involved. By engaging with the problem quickly following a loss, the McLarens Conservation team can offer a consultation leading to recommendations for intervention that respect the originality, history and value of the subject.

The same skillset can be applied to developing, overseeing and resolving the logistical challenges often associated with losses involving property. The proper handling of objects through relocation and storage is often overlooked as an indirect way of preventing further unnecessary losses and enabling safe working on buildings and objects in the proper environment.

The same experience can be called upon in understanding the extent of losses where irreversible damage has occurred, charting a course to thoroughly evaluate the financial loss which has arisen. By working with auction houses, galleries, studios and other dedicated conservation practitioners, the true extent of such incidents can be understood with confidence.

McLarens Conservation can be deployed across the globe in person, virtually, or through affiliates across any field of insurance or non-insurance-related tasks.
